Fellowship on Economic and Environmental Justice (2021-22)

Karnataka Adinathil Kshetra, a flagship initiative of the Research and Advocacy Cell at the Karnataka State Women's Forum, is a unique platform where researchers, activists, and policymakers come together to address pressing issues related to economic and environmental justice. The fellowship aims to foster a deeper understanding of these challenges and to develop practical solutions.

The fellowship is open to researchers, scholars, and practitioners who are passionate about addressing issues of economic and environmental justice in Karnataka. Recipients are expected to engage in intensive research and advocacy work, contributing to the development of policies and strategies that promote sustainable and equitable development.

The fellowship offers a stipend of 25,000 rupees per month, along with a research grant of 50,000 rupees per annum. This support is intended to enable fellows to focus on their research and to create a lasting impact in their respective fields.

Eligibility criteria include a strong academic background, demonstrated commitment to the cause of economic and environmental justice, and the ability to contribute to the research agenda.

The fellowship is open to applicants from across the country, and the selection process will be based on a rigorous evaluation of the applicants' qualifications and proposals.
